work on this. It's not my intent to belabor the issue and, with that, and with a happy Valentine's to all, I sit down.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Thank you, Senator. Senator Janssen.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Madam President, members, to put a little different light on this, I had a retailer call me two weeks ago and said, you had better look out and start checking...checking the identification on young adults making sure that they are over 18 years old. I said, what for? Well, he said we were involved in a sting operation on tobacco products. You know, the county sheriffs department in most of the counties, I'm sure, have plenty to do, they should...they should be looking out for other illegal, illegal drugs that are passed out on our streets. It upset me quite a bit to think that the law enforcement officers, especially in this county, had so much time on their hands that they had to go around to small independent merchants and running sting operations. The young lady that was involved in this, I understand, could have passed for 21 or 22 years old, but she was under 18, by a month or so. Now this man is facing some prosecution. Hopefully, hopefully, the courts will call this entrapment, but the man is worried and he was subject apparently up to about a 500 dollar fine, which I think is extreme for these kind of incidences. Now if the law enforcement officers want to get out and start watching on the public streets, they can see every day where someone is passing illegal, illegal drugs back and forth right out in the open. If they want to run some sting operations, that's a good place to do it. And another thing, if...I remember how we would have, and still do, people will call up and say, I'm sending Johnny down to the store, would you please give him a package of our cigarettes? And being a local merchant, you know what kind of cigarettes that person smokes. So we tell them, all right, bring a note down there; we're breaking the law, we're blatantly breaking the law by doing that. So we're not going to do it anymore and you can about imagine how irate Mrs. Jones is going to be when we send her kid back home without her cigarettes. She's going to be very upset with me. Well, if you don't sell that kid the cigarettes, I'm not going to come down and buy the rest of my groceries from you either. So these are the kind of things you're going to run into. And if someone had some answers on that for me, I would certainly like to listen to them. Maybe Senator Bernard-Stevens...I'll give the rest of my time to Senator Bernard-Stevens and see if he can elaborate on this a little bit.
